You asked...How can I feel relaxed, comfortable and reassured knowing I am being well cared for?

Pressure ulcers are chronic wounds that cause severe discomfort and are preventable in most cases.

The damage caused by a pressure ulcer impacts on your physical, psychological and social well-being. This distress can however be managed with fast intervention and an enhanced level of individual care, especially for you.

You asked...Who can help me source fast, compliant pressure care products for the patients who need them most?

We know you want to provide the very best for all your patients.

Finding the right support surface to suit individual patient needs, matching the exacting standards of efficacy, compliance and patient well-being, while under heavy time pressure is demanding and difficult. These pressures can have a negative impact on your daily working life, disrupt your valuable nursing time and make it hard to provide individual care.

You asked...Where can I find a trusted partner for a range of solutions to help me deliver individual care?

Professional care establishments provide a high level of pressure care for the vast majority. However, we know there is also a requirement for a range of specialist and bespoke systems.

Finding and sourcing individual products is not easy and often carried out by the carer, impacting on levels of patient care and causing frustration amongst the clinical team who are trying to manage the care pathway. Driven by time and system efficacy, in responding to patient needs, can lead to expensive one-off purchases. These off-contract, ad-hoc purchases are not only difficult to budget for but can also be challenging to manage.
